Council adopts caretaker policy

Kingborough Council has a new Election Caretaker Period Policy that applies in the lead-up to Council's general elections.

The caretaker policy is the first of its kind in Local Government in Tasmania, according to Kingborough

In a media release on Tuesday, November 2, Deputy Mayor of Kingborough, Cr Jo Westwood said caretaker provisions for the sector are standard in most mainland jurisdictions.

"There is nothing like this for Tasmanian councils," Cr Westwood said.

"On the mainland, councils are required by legislation to assume a caretaker role leading into election periods, to ensure that major decisions are not made which would limit the actions of an incoming council.

"Support has been increasing within the Tasmanian Local Government sector for some form of caretaker provisions, although nothing has been adopted yet.

"Until a sector-wide approach is implemented for Tasmania, Kingborough Council has decided to adopt its own provisions and hopes to lead the way for better rigour around its election period for local representatives.

"The policy provides guidance for the organisation, its staff and Councillors in relation to decision making. "It is designed to allow the administrative functions of Council to continue while preventing the incumbent representatives from making major contractual or policy decisions immediately before an election.

"It outlines what Council resources can be used and what behavioural standards are expected in the lead up to an election," noted Cr Westwood.

"The policy draws on examples from councils on the mainland and it only applies to Local Government general elections and not to by-elections.

"The Election Caretaker Period Policy strengthens Kingborough Council's procedures during elections and is a good governance model for other Tasmanian councils to follow.

Kingborough to oppose pokies

Kingborough Council has passed a motion to commit to oppose any additional pokies being established in Kingborough, at a general meeting on November 1. Kingborough Mayor, Paula Wriedt welcomed the commitment by Council and said changes to State legislation will see pubs and clubs offered licences to operate their own pokies after July 1, 2023. "This (State legislation) could see a rise in the number of electronic gaming machines in Kingborough," Cr Wriedt said. "The (Council) commitment would see Council make a submission whenever a Community Interest Test is being undertaken by an applicant whose proposed licensed premises is in our municipality." The motion was brought forward by Councillor

Gideon Cordover, proposing that Kingborough Council:

- Acknowledges that pokies cause harm;
- Has advocated to mitigate that harm by joining the Tasmanian Community Coalition in 2016 (now referred to as Community Voice on Pokies Reform) alongside other councils such as Brighton, Glenorchy, Hobart, Southern Midlands and Meander Vallev: and
- · Commits to opposing any additional pokies in Kingborough by making a submission whenever a Community Interest Test is being undertaken by an applicant whose proposed licensed premises is in our municipality.

The motion was passed five votes in favour (Cr Cordover, Cr Midgley, Cr Glade-Wright, Cr Fox and Cr Wreidt) to four against (Cr Wass, Cr Street, Cr Bastone and Cr Westwood).

Cr Cordover said the Kingborough community will now have more protection.

"In my opinion, this is an important step because pokies cause harm," said Cr Cordover.

"Pokies are designed to addict and are rigged to lose "Since the Future Gaming Market bill passed the House of Assembly, it seems likely that there will be significant changes to the gaming market in 2023 which will allow individual licences for venues to have pokies (ending the Federal Group monopoly). "I believe that the successful passing of my motion sends a strong signal.

"I think the Kingborough community will have more protection from the harm that would (otherwise) be caused by extra pokies being installed in local pubs

"Polling has shown that the majority of Tasmanians think pokies in pubs and clubs have a negative impact on the community and residents in the Franklin electorate."

Election inquiry rejected

An Upper House proposal for a joint committee inquiry into the conduct of Tasmania's 2021 State and Legislative Council elections was rejected by a vote in Tasmania's House of Assembly on October 27.

The outcome has been criticised by the Independent Member for Nelson, Meg Webb MLC, Independent Member for Clark, Kristie Johnston MP and Greens Member for Clark, Cassy O'Connor MP.

Speaking in Parliament on October 27, Cassy O'Connor MP said the incumbent Liberal Government was resisting a joint select committee "because the Government will not have control of that joint select committee".

"Given the topic that this select committee would be examining, it is right that it be non-partisan and that no party has the numbers on this select committee," said Cassy O'Connor MP.

"A two-year probe into funding promised during the integrity watchdog in April after a legal argument with the Liberal Party over the inquiry's direction." Kristie Johnston MP said the Tasmanian Electoral Commission (TEC) is "hamstrung" by a lack of powers,

"Tasmania has the weakest integrity laws in the country", noted Kristie Johnston MP.

"We now have a Tasmanian Electoral Commission report which finds that successive Tasmanian governments may have carried out, and I use the Commission's words, "indirect electoral bribery" through the distribution of grants at election time."

Independent Member for Nelson, Meg Webb MLC said parliamentary review of elections is standard practice in other jurisdictions, and the rejection of the inquiry is evidence of "a concerted effort to marginalise Parliament's scrutiny role".

"The Federal Parliament and other interstate parliaments which hold routine post-election parliamentary oversight inquiries also have their own equivalent electoral commissions who participate as witnesses before those parliamentary committees," said Meg Webb MLC.

On June 29, independent and Labor MLCs voted in support of Ms Webb's motion to establish a joint select committee into the conduct of the 2021 State and Legislative Council elections, while three Liberal MLCs voted against the motion.

population expansion as the driving force.

Inevitably, it is now clashing with physical reality of planetary limits.

The Huntingfield development represents a small example of the physical impact reality, as do many other similar building developments.

Bit by bit consuming land that once provided food for the exponentially expanding human population.

Currently we have our leaders and their economic advisers at COP26, desperate to preserve economic expansion in the face of a predicted fiery future on this planet.

Yet the very action of economic development, whether by using fossil or renewable energy, creates the same population/land expansion problem.

A giant catch-22 situation.

There is no need for technologists to answer the energy prayers of economists.

Just a need for economists and politicians to understand the physical human population limits of this planet when making decisions.

Rather than politicians making decisions that benefit their personal career advancement and hidden profiting entities who support them.

> Kelvin Jones Kingston

"We are seeing a disturbing pattern emerge where the Government repeatedly breaches established parliamentary practice in order to avoid routine public scrutiny", said Meg Webb MLC.

"There is an established convention when either the House of Assembly or Legislative Council requests the other joins them to conduct a joint house committee inquiry, it is agreed to.

"instead, for the second time in less than 18 months, the Gutwein Liberal Government has refused to work cooperatively with the Upper House when faced with such a request."

Ms Webb described as "disingenuous and insulting" the State Government's claim a parliamentary review of the 2021 elections would either duplicate or undermine the TEC.

"The Government's attempt to hide behind the TEC is so spurious, those spouting it should be cringing with embarrassment.

"The more the Premier ducks and weaves in his attempts to prevent the Parliament from doing its job on behalf of the community, the more he looks like he has something to hide.

Responsibility for removing fire hazards

Dear Editor,

Publications in the Kingborough Chronicle and The Mercury refer to the dumping of tyres in areas of Middleton in southern Tasmania.

These areas are bushfire prone and have had devastating fires.

Flowerpot Cemetery, which is adjacent to this township, had had at least 13-15 tyres dumped in the bush at the cemetery.

The tyres have been there for some time.

This was reported to the Tasmanian Fire Service and referred onward to a Kingborough Council officer on September 21.

Once in a generation chance

Independent Member for Nelson Meg Webb MLC Tasmanians from the harm caused by pokies. aims to send the Tasmanian Government's contentious Future Gaming Markets legislation to a parliamentary inquiry this week.

In a media release on Monday, November 8, Ms Webb questioned whether the Government's bill would deliver the best outcome for the community.

"This bill needs further scrutiny on the grounds critical elements have not received adequate public examination and it fails to deliver best value for our State," Ms Webb said.

"There is a very simple question all Upper House members should ask themselves during the debate this week: 'Does this bill deliver the best possible outcomes for the Tasmanian community?'

"Based on all independent expert advice the answer is a resounding no.

Given that, we have no option but to refer it for proper scrutiny in a committee.

"A parliamentary inquiry would undertake a thorough examination of these industry-written reforms and assess their impact on our state, socially and financially."

Ms Webb said the lack of modelling, absence of meaningful consultation and continuation of special deals through tax concessions are just some of the reasons the bill needs greater examination.

"We all know that the casino pokies tax rate was withheld from the Tasmanian public during the May election, despite being signed off on by Federal Group in December last year.

"The Government continues to duck awkward questions over how and when the casino tax deal was arrived at and the quarter of a billion dollars it puts in Federal Group's pocket, instead of going into Tasmanian hospitals and schools.

"The Legislative Council has a fine tradition of standing up at key moments of gambling reform, and it now faces a critical once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to better protect

T & 10 YARD TIP TRUCKS

"We can make pokies safer to use with no negative affect on recreational use or jobs, and that's exactly what Tasmanians want these reforms to do.

"Post-election polling in August shows 71 per cent of Liberal voters and 71 per cent of Labor voters support lowering maximum bets on poker machines from $5 to $1.

"Eight in 10 Liberal voters and nine in 10 Labor voters think this legislation should include consumer protection and harm minimisation.

Ms Webb said both the Government and Labor Opposition were prepared to sacrifice vulnerable Tasmanians for their own political self-interest.

"The refusal by the cowardly coalition of the Liberal and Labor parties to stare down industry interests and put Tasmanians first has shocked many in the community.

"The clear indicator that this is a pro-industry Bill is the deafening silence of gaming industry operators in the current public debate.

"Clearly, the gaming lobby don't need to say anything further as they have secured what they want.

"Clearly, the Gutwein Liberal Government, with its industry-designed and dictated policy, is prioritising profit for the major players over the well-being of vulnerable Tasmanians

"This pro-industry Bill clearly fails to place the best interests of the Tasmanian community first.

"It is critical the Parliament does not fail to do so. If a Parliamentary Inquiry into the Future Gaming Markets Bill doesn't get support, Ms Webb flagged she has prepared a comprehensive suite of amendments to the Bill.

"I will fight for these on the floor of Parliament.

"The amendments relate to the following areas:

- Inclusion of harm minimisation and consumer protection measures:
- The powers and functions of the Tasmanian Liquor and Gaming Commission;
- taxation rates
- community say on pokies numbers;
- new gambling products;
- review of penalties, data collection and reporting;
- · licence periods;
- ownership limitations: and
- various miscellaneous matters."

Kingborough child care fees rising

New data has revealed families are paying higher child care fees.

In a media release on October 22, Federal Member for Franklin, Julie Collins MP said local families are paying more and more out-of-pocket costs.

The Child Care in Australia report March quarter 2021, published by the Australian Government Department of Education, Skills and Employment, presents data on child care usage, services, fees and subsidies in Australia.

According to the report, average hourly fees across all care types (excluding In Home care) nationally was $10.25, reflecting an increase of 2.5 per cent since the March quarter 2020, with an average hourly fee of $9.80 for Centre Based Day Care in Tasmania.

Nationally, the average hours in Centre Based Day Care was 31 hours per child, or approximately three days per week.

Julie Collins MP said child care fees have soared nationally by 39.2 per cent since 2013 and the current government's policy falls "far too short of what is required to bring genuine and permanent fee relief to local families".

"The Department of Education's most recent data (March 2021) shows child care fees in Kingborough increased by 4.5 per cent over 12 months, well above the national increase of 2.4 per cent.

"Fees rose well above inflation for the same period (1.1 per cent), which the Child Care Subsidy is indexed to, meaning local families are paying more and more out of pocket costs."

"She has also been in-house Bingo caller for years, which as many would know Bingo is hotly contested in aged care homes."

Speaking with the Kingborough Chronicle about her experience volunteering at the nursing home and her interaction with the residents over the years, Christine Sward said it was a very rewarding experience that she would recommend to others.

"They've got so much wisdom and such a story to tell," said Christine.

"Staff haven't got the time to sit and chat.

"That's what's missing."

Christine encouraged people to bring children to the aged care facilities.

Emerging habitat

Kingston emerging artist Julia Mountain was one of eight artists who collaborated with scientists and researchers to make eco-friendly little penguin nesting modules for threatened colonies of Derwent Estuary recently.

The Kingborough Chronicle went along to the Clay Habitat exhibition held at the Kingborough Community Hub from October 28 to 31

Project Curator Caroline Davies said ten of the 14 pieces were sold on opening night to "buyers acting as philanthropists" with the remainder selling prior to the closure of the exhibition.

The project's coordinator, local artist Jane Bramford, said the cross-disciplinary knowledge embodied artworks had been "gifted into habitat".

The concept of designing and building habitat for other species had been borne from Jane's increasing awareness and concern regarding the impacts of humans on our living planet and the current epoch of species decline. "It's meaningful work for artists," said Jane.

"I'd become uncomfortable with making things for the human world."

Julia Mountain said her design was inspired by Tasmania's Tetragonia species, as she imagined it growing over the little penguin's home, providing camouflage. Julia studied art at The Friend's School for six years and now continues ceramic work as a hobby.

"I built up my module by scratching and slurrying coils on top of each other in a shell-like shape," explained Julia. "I added sandbars at the entrance so my module won't easily be dug into.

"Next I began to slightly curl the coils inwards, until there was only a small area left at the top, which I fitted a lid to. "Then I decorated with vines and leaves.

"For ventilation I cut holes into the module under some of the leaves."

Collaborating scientists and researchers included IMAS, Birdlife Tasmania and the Friends of the Derwent and the Channel Penguins Wildcare Group.

Other collaborating artists included Penny Smith, Anna Williams, Nanna Bayer, Miriam Berkery, Neil Hoffmann and Orla Marchment.

Artist Anna Williams used text from the book A Home for Little Penguin by Hannah Coats and Claire Neylands to provide a suitable texture for plants to latch onto and climb over.

COUNCIL MESSAGES

Birdlife Brochure Launch

Kingborough has a new way to help you find local bird species, thanks to BirdLife Tasmania and support from the Kingborough Council Community Grants program.

The brochure details habitats, access and the birds likely to be seen on 10 easy walks in the Kingborough Municipality, including Bruny Island.

Stocked at Kingborough Council's, Civic Centre, Libraries and at BirdLife Tasmanian events with an online version on Council Website.

Cycling Strategy Callout

Kingborough Council has released its draft Cycling Strategy 2021 - 2030 for public consultation.

The strategy looks at the growing cycling needs of Kingborough over the next 10 years and outlines the benefits for improving cycling in the community.

Council is seeking feedback from the community on this draft strategy.

To provide your feedback please visit Community Engagement Projects on Council's website.

Raingardens

Council has developed new signage to educate residents of Spring Farm and Whitewater Creek estates about the important role raingardens play in managing stormwater.

Raingardens are small garden beds located in kerb buildouts on the edge of the road.

They are designed to capture and filter stormwater before it is discharged to our waterways.

As stormwater water flows, it collects pollutants from the surfaces and washes them into our rivulets and stormwater systems.

Raingardens filter out pollutants using native grasses and rushes to remove pollutants from stormwater runoff.

The treated stormwater then flows into the underground network of stormwater pipes before being discharged into pipes and our creeks and river systems.

Join us for a fun relaxed evening on the lawn in our community space, for some live music and food vans.

Family home on two titles

A family home with water views in a tranquil setting, close to the Alum Cliff walking track and dog beach.

When we think of the area known as Bonnet Hill it conjures up images of a quiet, safe lifestyle, close to the beach and nature.

Bonnet Hill offers a lifestyle that is uninterrupted by the goings-on of everyday madness, but close enough to shops and transport to be part of everything.

Remember the days gone by when purchasing a family home meant a decent sized house with a big backyard and cubby for the kids to play in?

This property is a definite must.

Second home buyers wanting to upsize and livethe-dream should view this property.

The brick family home is situated on approximately 1306 square metres of land.

There are two living rooms, four bedrooms and two renovated bathrooms.

The upgraded kitchen has stone bench tops with a stainless-steel splashback and stainless steel appli-

The home features floor-to-ceiling windows, a built-in bookcase in the second family room, quality carpet and polished Tasmanian oak floorboards

Three carports and one garage, attractive brick paving and enclosed yards complete the property.

There's potential to build another home on the block beside, to sell or rent and obtain another

Alternatively, purchase this family home, extend and transform it into an expansive home with water views in a peaceful bush location close to Kingston

So many options with this property, be fast and don't miss out.

TESTIMONIAL

Totally dedicated to achieving the best outcome from day 1

From the first phone call with Kerri-Louise, we felt like we were her only clients. Her attention to our requests and her timely action in having the property listed and ready for sale were exceptional.

Throughout the process, we were kept updated regularly and even though we had a sale fall through (finance related), the process didn't stop for a day. Kerri-Louise negotiated on our behalf and spent many hours ensuring that we didn't lose momentum for a sale.

Her energy is infectious and her genuine desire to get the best result for her clients cannot be over-stated

I have bought and sold more than 30 properties both here and overseas and Kerri-Louise is up there with the best agents I have worked with.

Santosha Yoga Australia welcomes everyone to its Kingborough community classes, where many students start as beginners. (PS)

Welcome to yoga

Santosha Yoga Australia offers welcoming yoga classes in Kingston and Kettering.

Kingborough local Danielle Bendall opened Santosha Yoga Australia in 2016 and loves the community bond that has developed among regular students.

"If you are after the type of yoga class where people will smile and chat before and after the class then this might be the place for you," said Danielle.

"Many of the students started as beginners themselves." There are eight classes offered, catering for beginners, the advanced, the fit or otherwise and the flexible or not. Having studied under some of the world's leading trainers, Danielle takes a functional approach to yoga.

"Each pose has a purpose, a reason for doing it, and it's nothing to do with creating a 'perfect' looking pose," said Danielle.

"We all have unique bodies, so we will all look different

"Nobody at Santosha Yoga Australia cares what you look like or what you wear.

"These community classes are particularly appealing for those who feel intimidated by the thought of attending a yoga studio."

There are three class types at venues in Kingborough, each with different benefits:

- Vinyasa, a dynamic and active form of yoga
- · Gentle, a style that balances strength and flexibility, at a slow and steady pace
- · Yin, a passive style of yoga that is more meditative and still.

Bookings are essential, visit the website to find out more.

How much caffeine is too much?

Here we are, on the slippery slope to the end of the year.

We may indulge a little, have a few too many late nights, experience an increased workload and lack

This can lead to people reaching for more coffee.

But is this good for us?

Or, should we drink more tea instead? Samantha the owner of the Art of Tea said customers often enquire about the amount of caffeine in tea and coffee. "To try and answer this we provide this simplistic guide," said Samantha. "A standard coffee has about 90 milligrams of caffeine.

"Black tea has around 40mg and green tea 15mg.

"Herbal infusions and rooibos are naturally caffeine free." Samantha notes this is a guide only, as there is variability among tea and coffee varieties.

"For example in a barista made coffee, the caffeine could be as high as 200mg and a strong black tea up to 120mg," explained Samantha. "The region where tea is grown, processing methods of harvested leaves, the quantity of the leaf brewed and the actual brew time, all affect the amount of caffeine in the "We also know that some people love the spoon-standing-up strength cuppa whilst others are inclined to just waft a tea bag across the top.

"There are so many variables it is impossible to know the exact caffeine content in any cup of tea.

"It is important to note too that individually people could react differently to caffeine both from tea, coffee or other caffeinated beverages.

"Pay attention to how you feel after tea or coffee and watch for signs of anxiety, feeling jittery or restless," said

"Also be mindful that consuming caffeinated drinks after 3pm should be minimised as they may reduce the ability to fall asleep."

The Art of Tea has a large range of teas, including caffeine-free options and the new spiced rooibos, available now until Christmas.

Oral health integral to overall health

When we think about going to the dentist, we think about our teeth, but not often our mouth.

When we visit the dentist, they don't just check our teeth, but the whole mouth.

It's never too late to start taking care of your mouth and teeth and your body will thank you for it.

Oral health is more than just having a nice smile The Denison Dental team believes oral health plays an integral role in everyone's overall health, quality of life and wellbeing, not just physical, but also psychological and social. Oral disease can lead to pain, infection and tooth loss. This can cause difficulties with chewing, swallowing, speaking and disrupt sleep. We all want to be able to eat, speak and socialise without pain, discomfort, or fear of embarrassment.

Nobody deserves to be afraid to smile or laugh due to a fear of revealing their teeth, or constantly worry about eating in public with poor fitting dentures or large gaps where food can easily become lodged.

These fears can contribute to depression, anxiety, and poor social interaction.

Your mouth can be a mirror to your body and can offer clues about your general health.

It can reveal nutritional deficiencies and signs of other diseases. Dr Viviers from Denison Dental says that some research links gum disease to heart disease, diabetes, respiratory disease, osteoporosis and rheumatoid arthritis.

Gum disease is a common chronic inflammatory condition. Adopting preventative care practices can be simple to achieve. Dr Viviers believes that going to the dentist regularly can help to detect gum and other oral diseases early.

The Dental Hygienist at Denison Dental, Megan Perkins, specialises in the use of preventative, educational and therapeutic methods to control and prevent oral diseases. Preventative care and early detection and treatment are crucial to fighting oral diseases and associated health conditions. Regardless of how complex dental issues are, they can be addressed by visiting a general dentist and dental

This can in turn lead to an increase in personal wellbeing and additionally improve your general health.

Denison Dental believes oral health plays an integral role in everyone's overall health, quality of life and wellbeing, not just physical, but also psychological and social. Local hearing support Ability Hearing and Balance provide hearing support for local pensioners without the mainland price tag.

The main reason that local audiologists, Nick and Heidi Modrovich, decided to open up a hearing clinic right in heart of Kingston is to provide exceptional hearing support tailored for Tasmanians without the "mainland" price tag.

"Accessibility to quality hearing aids at affordable Tasmanian pricing is one of the key goals at Ability Hearing and Balance," said Principal Audiologist Heidi Modrovich. "Our clients delightfully find that we are often thousands of dollars cheaper than the mainland chains, simply because we recognize that many local people cannot afford mainland pricing set by some CEO sitting in a Sydney corner office.

"It is completely unrealistic for many locals to afford hearing devices which ought to be accessible to as many people as we can help," said Heidi.

"Being a Tasmanian-owned independent hearing clinic neans we source hearing aids from all manufacturers. "We negotiate better pricing which we pass on to our clients.

"As a small business, we do not have to pay high level mainland executives by driving hearing aid prices up. "It's a win-win for everyone," said Heidi.

"We get to fit everyday Tasmanians with better technology that they can afford, and they get better outcomes for their hearing.

Ability Hearing and Balance has consistently received fivestar reviews since it opened in Channel Court in February. The clinic is the only in the area to provide earwax micro-suction as well as hearing tests in one location.

The clinic is also accredited under the Commonwealth Hearing Services Program to provide fully funded, high quality hearing aids to eligible pensioners.

With over 20 years of experience, Ability Hearing and Balance are a great alternative for locals to experience a trusted, local approach for their hearing needs. Contact the clinic on 1300 327 776

Next generation nursing courses

Healthcare staff are always working hard on the frontline to keep the community safe.

Despite the challenges COVID-19 has brought to this profession, healthcare staff continue to work tirelessly.

At the Health Education and Research Centre (HERC) the next generation of potential Enrolled Nurses, aged care and disability support workers are lining up to complete the courses offered through a third-party agreement with the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Education Centre.

HERC is the preferred place of study for many, due to the small class sizes, enabling teaching staff to build professional working relationships with students in a cohesive environment.

The HERC offers hands-on, simulation-based learning that is reflective of the workplace and aims to deliver training that meets the learning styles of each student.

The Centre works with the Aged and Community Services Australia (ACSA) and Skills Tasmania to offer funded positions in its Diploma of Nursing course, to upskill staff already working in the aged and community sector

The HERC recognises the current demand for workers in this industry and the projected shortfalls and has been successfully running this program since early 2019.

HERC also offers various other funding streams through Skills Tasmania to heavily subsidise the costs of all courses to eligible and successful applicants.

To enquire about eligibility for courses and funding, visit www.herc.tas.edu.au or call 6223 6777.

Improving hearing

Monitoring signs of hearing difficulty

Noise-induced hearing loss can happen so slowly it may not be noticeable.

Signs to look out for, or rather, hear out for:
• Struggling to hear family or friends;

- Ending phone calls early or handing the phone to
- someone else when it was hard to hear;

 Mishearing words or needing to ask for repeats;
- Others complaining about the volume of the TV or radio;
- Needing to concentrate more with unfamiliar voices
- Noticing family/friends becoming frustrated when repeating themselves;
- Avoiding noisy places because it is difficult to have a conversation;
- Struggling to follow conversations in films and TV shows;
- Feeling tired after talking with others or in a group;
 Increased difficulties comprehend someone who isn't looking at you; and Noticing that sounds are less clear.

The good news is, it's easy to protect our hearing.

Just as we wear sunscreen when we go outside, we should wear earplugs or earmuffs in a noisy environment such as a loud concert or around power tools.

Communication strategies

Everybody occasionally misses something said in conversation. And almost everyone, even those with no hearing loss, struggle to understand every bit of a conversation when there's a lot of background noise.

However, this difficulty is greater for people with hearing loss. The challenge comes with trying to focus on the person talking while attempting to ignore the noises around them. Strategies to assist:

• Ensure the person speaking is in clear view.

Sun or bright lights behind people cast shadows over faces, making it harder to see lip patterns.

Reduce background noise.

Turn competing sounds down, off or move away.

• Put your back to the background noise.

Our ears are designed to favour sounds arriving from in front of us and pay less attention to sounds from behind.

- Position yourself in front of the person speaking.
- Check for understanding.

When someone shares key information, repeat it back to them to confirm understanding.

When having difficulty understanding someone, ask if they could repeat themselves using different words and perhaps more slowly.

• Encourage friends and family to gain your attention before speaking to you.

Before someone talks to you, get them into the habit of saying your name first, then let them know to wait until you're directly facing them, and ask them to speak clearly.

A little helpful direction with others can mean a big difference in hearing what's being said.

• Take 'listening breaks'.

If you feel overwhelmed and tired after continuous listening, especially in noise, take a break from listening and then join back in the conversation.

DEPARTMENT of STATE GROWTH

Davey Street Rehabilitation Work

Thank you for your patience as we repair the road surface on Davey Street.

Detoured access into South Hobart

Until 12 November, between the hours of 6.30pm and 6.30am, there will be no direct access from Davey Street into South Hobart while we lay new road surface at the intersection with the Southern Outlet. Please allow for an extra 15 minutes travel time.

The detour

Light vehicles can detour to South Hobart via Lynton Avenue.

Heavy vehicles will be detoured onto the southbound lanes of Southern Outlet, turning at the Olinda Grove interchange to return into South Hobart via the northbound lanes on Southern Outlet. They can then access South Hobart via the left turn lane on to Davey Street, which will remain open.

Emergency services will be escorted through the worksite to access South Hobart.

Ongoing traffic changes

We will be working nights between 6.30pm to 6.30am from Sunday to Thursday. Where a shift is lost due to poor weather conditions, work may be rescheduled to include an optional Friday night. Night time lane closures and reduced speed limits will be in place. Motorists should allow up to eight minutes extra travel time during the roadworks period.

Two lanes of traffic on Davey Street will remain open during nightworks.

Please follow speed limits and the directions of traffic controllers and signs. A reduced speed limit will also be in place during the day for the roadworks period.

Other changes

There will be no street parking available in the work location.

There will be some temporary, nightly disruptions to bus stops. Please follow your service provider's alerts and look for any local signage.

This project supports the delivery of projects within the Hobart City Deal. For more information about this project, visit transport.tas.gov.au.
