

Jacquie Petrusma joins Nexus board

Former Liberal MP Jacquie Petrusma was recently elected to the voluntary board of disability support provider, Nexus Inc.

"It is a real privilege and a great honour to be able to volunteer with an outstanding organisation that helps everyday Tasmanians live happier, healthier and more fulfilling lives," Ms Petrusma said.

"I myself have lived with the experience of disability, as I have severe hearing loss and a cochlear implant, so I am very passionate about giving back to this inspirational sector."

Nexus operates throughout southern Tasmania to support over 300 clients in residential, community and employment settings.

Ms Petrusma was the Shadow Minister for Disability Services from 2010-2014 and the Minister for Disability Services from 2014-2019, serving Tasmanians living with disability for nine years.

Ms Petrusma was involved in the roll out of the NDIS in Tasmania as the responsible Minister at the time, which gives her a unique perspective on the aspirations of people living with disability in Tasmania.

"We are very pleased to have Jacquie join our Board – her experience and compassion is well suited to the goals and mission of our Board," Nexus Board Chair Marcus Pringle Jones said.

The Probus Men's Club of Kingston held a celebration, including a lovely cake, during their general meeting on November 28 to mark the birthdays of their nonagenarian members. The nonagenarians are, from left to right Ross Preston, Harold Woodruff, Peter Ball and Max Wills. Two nonagenarians, Don Trotman and Ellis Peterson, were unfortunately unable to be present to enjoy the cake.^(PS)

Kingborough renters face housing crisis

The Kingborough municipality is one of the most unaffordable districts in the country according to new data released in the annual Rental Affordability Index (RAI).

It joined the Greater Hobart region in leading the country as the least affordable capital city for renters.

Compiled by public policy specialists SGS Economics and Planning, the RAI provide insights into how rental affordability impacts different locations and household types.

Its basis is tailored on data and analysis revealing affordability trends in the rental market, with a particular focus on low-income households.

High rents, relative to household incomes, mean that Greater Hobart area, including the Kingborough region, is the least affordable metropolitan area in Australia and has been since 2019.

The Kingborough region falls below the threshold of their rental stress index, calculated on the RAI system of falling below a score of 100.

Rental stress is characterised by a household that spends close to or more than 30 per cent of their income on rent, according to the report.

Since 2016, the median rental rate in Hobart has grown by 60 per cent.

It is now 11 per cent higher than the Melbourne median, despite the average rental household income being 18 per cent lower, according to the study.

With a score of 102, the average rental household in Greater Hobart is close to being in rental stress (below a RAI score of 100), paying 29 per cent of their total income if renting at the median rate.

Regional Tasmania has a RAI score of 108, which represents a large decline in affordability, to a new historic low, over the last year from a score of 120, a nine per cent decrease.

The average rental household in Tasmania now faces paying around 28 per cent of their income if renting a dwelling at the median rate, which is nearing the definition of rental stress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tackling toxic activism

Peter George is wildly off the mark in his recent attempt to whip up hysteria and demonise our industry for applying proven, regulated animal husbandry practices.

Like all farmers, our veterinarians are tasked to look after the health and welfare of our stock.

Throughout the farming industry, including the production of chicken, beef, pork, dairy and salmon, the occasional use of antibiotics is a normal and highly regulated process that is applied carefully under expert, scientific advice.

Mr George needs to take a holistic and global view of responsible protein production with consideration of what the scientists and leaders are telling us, instead of singling our industry out for political point scoring.

The recent comments from the World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF) at this year's UN Climate Conference (COP27) speak volumes about "activism" versus the people finding real solutions to the challenges we face.

"There is no prospect of maintaining the sustainability of the international seafood sector without shifting large amounts of fish production to aquaculture (fish farming)". WWF, November 2022.

Their focus is holistic because the pressure facing society is to simultaneously create global solutions that will feed our growing population whilst protecting our natural fish stocks. This is a big task, and to do this we need farmed fish.

Globally, natural fish stocks are under enormous pressure. There are 3.7 million commercial fishing vessels in the world, with this number doubling since the 1980's.

In Australia we import more than half of the total seafood we consume, further adding to the carbon footprint.

Meanwhile, Tasmania grows 90 percent of Australia's salmon and 83 percent of that is consumed domestically.
This is a key ingredient to reducing pressure on limited wild fish stocks by producing locally grown protein that has a lower carbon footprint.

Facts you won't hear from activists like Mr George is that fish farming also provides better environmental outcomes than other forms of protein production.

Salmon is a very carbon friendly source of protein.
WWF estimate that in terms of carbon emissions, ocean-based salmon farms emit less than half the emissions of land-based protein.

These estimates show ocean-based salmon farms emit only 2.2 kilograms of carbon dioxide for every kilogram of edible fish produced.

By comparison farms produce 5.1 kilograms of carbon for every kilogram of chicken, 6.4 kilograms for pork and 37.2 kilograms for beef.

These are important facts that paint a bigger picture than that done by a person hell bent on destroying an industry, seemingly because he simply doesn't like it.

The salmon industry is an important part of the Tasmanian farming sector and has an even more important role to play in the future. We need to stop and remind ourselves of what is at stake not just for Tasmanians, but for the world.

The science is clear and the time to fall in love with Tasmanian salmon is now.

Sue Grau, CEO, Salmon Tasmania

Beware your Council

Ratepayers should be aware at least one Tasmanian Council wants to exclude the general public from Council meetings giving far greater power to Councillors over Ratepayers.

Councils already have 48 closed meetings yearly.
Progress Associations and Ratepayers groups should be vigilant, preventing the adoption of this undemocratic move.

Instead, we should move to have one Ratepayer voice per Council to monitor each attendance at Council meetings.

A similar system to that being considered for indigenous representation in Federal Parliament.

Youth Council opens

13 new members are being sought for Council in time for the first meeting of 2023, which will take place in February or March.

All applicants will be told the outcome of their application before this time.

Advisory Council webpage www.dpac.tas.gov.au/pyac.

"I look forward to seeing the applications and welcoming 13 new members to the Council in early 2023," said

Rental unpredictability solutions needed

The Tasmanian Council of Social Service (TasCOSS) is calling for the introduction of tighter restrictions surrounding short-term rentals to support Tasmanians experiencing homelessness and housing stress.

TasCOSS CEO Ms Adrienne Picone said the Rental Affordability Index revealed that over the past five years the gap between income and rent has been widening and if this trend continues, the average rental household in Hobart will be in housing stress.

“While we welcome the Tasmanian Government’s commitment to build 10,000 more social and affordable homes over the next 10 years, while these houses are being built, we need short- and medium-term measures to support and improve housing outcomes for Tasmanians,” Ms Picone said.

“In such a tight rental market, every new available home counts.

“We also echo calls from Shelter Tasmania for limits to be placed on short-stay accommodation, so that whole homes stay in the private rental sector rather than the short-stay sector.”

An independently funded report commissioned by Shelter Tas and produced by Emeritus Professor Peter Phibbs, highlighted that within Hobart City, 47 per cent of Airbnb short term rentals previously had a long-term rental history, suggesting that growth in this short-term market was having a direct impact on the long-term rental market.

Kingborough Mayor Cr Paula Wriedt when questioned regarding council imposing limits to short-stay accommodation, responded that, “We need a whole of government response to the housing situation.”

“Kingborough Council is currently working with the other Greater Hobart Councils in contributing to a review of State Planning controls, including proposed State Planning Policies.

“Council is also keeping abreast of the current discussions around short stay accommodation and the work that the City of Hobart has been doing in this space.

“It is important to make sure that any changes in short stay accommodation are targeted correctly towards providing solutions to housing needs, without unintended adverse impacts on sectors such as tourism.

Franklin MP David O’Byrne took aim at the State Government stating, “A key part of the solution needs to be for the State Government to increase the supply of social and affordable housing, but this Government just can’t seem to build anything.

“The Huntingfield affordable housing development was announced in 2019, but there’s still no sign of any of the housing that was promised there.”

“Tragically, thousands of Tasmanians are priced out of the private rental market.

“With near-record wait times for scarce social and public housing, many are left with no other option than to couch-surf or sleep rough.”

State Minister for housing Guy Barnett when questioned by the Kingborough Chronicle whether the State Government looking at any restrictions or conditioning surrounding short-term rentals replied that “that is the responsibility of each council”.

He continued, stating that, “The Government has the most ambitious social and affordable housing plan in the State’s history, to build 10,000 homes and dwellings by 2032 and we are on track to deliver 1500 by June 30 next year.

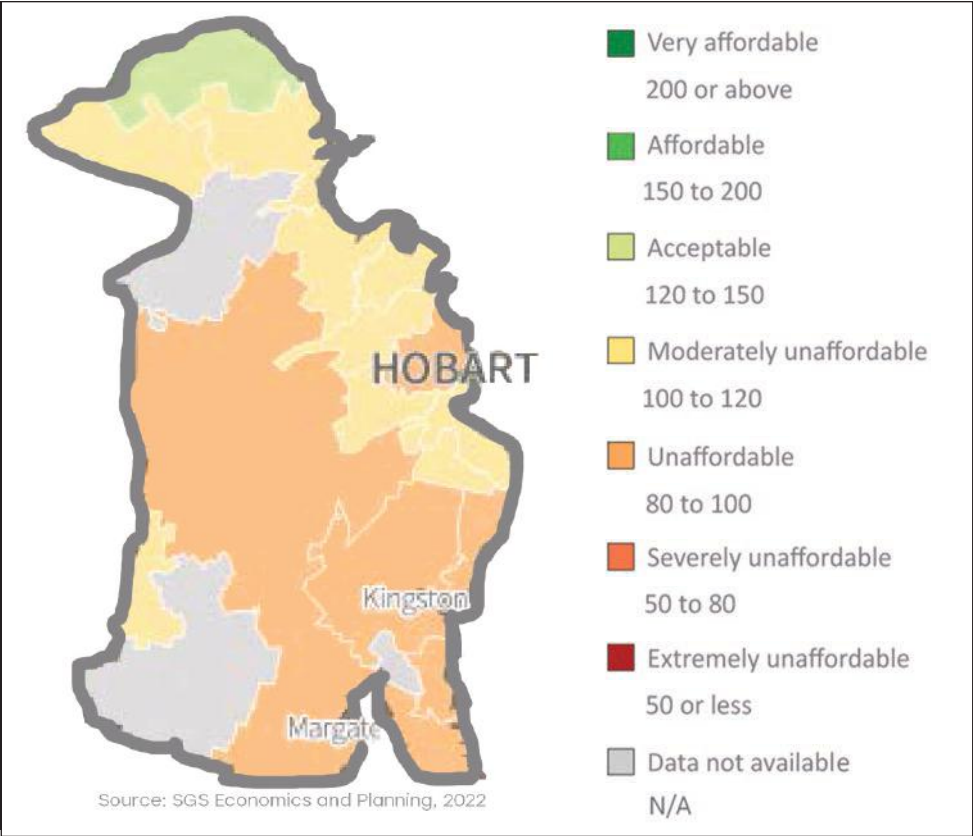

“In addition to building more social and affordable homes there are also more incentives available for Tasmanian property owners with the release of the expanded Private Rental Incentives (PRI) program.

“Under the PRI program, property owners are invited to make their homes available for affordable rent to households on low incomes and who have low or no support needs.

“The Tasmanian Government is doubling the portfolio with incentives with a further 200 homes under the expanded program.”

Greens member for Franklin Rosalie Woodruff said this doesn’t go far enough to solve the immediate issue facing thousands of Tasmanians today.

“Every year rent prices skyrocket further, and we hear

The Kingborough municipality’s rental market is one of the worst hit areas, falling under the RAI stress indication category of being wholly unaffordable for renters. (PS) more heartbreaking stories of Tasmanians forced into hardship and homelessness.

“Despite this, the Liberal Government is doing nothing to protect renters from this terrible situation.

“We recognise and support the plan to build more houses, but most of the Government’s planned build is many years away.

“Housing experts warn it could take even longer than the government predicts.

“In the meantime, we can and should take steps today that would help renters.

“These include controlling short stay accommodation, reining in rent increases, and banning evictions for ‘no cause’.

“The Government refuses to act on these issues, presumably because it wouldn’t suit the interests of wealthy investors.

“These improvements have been adopted by other states, but Tasmania’s Government has its priorities all wrong.

“They prefer to leave tens of thousands of tenants vulnerable to massive, unreasonable rent increases and unfair eviction.

“We can’t understand, given the extreme day-to-day hardship facing many renters, why the government doesn’t use every possible mechanism to make people’s lives a little easier.”

Family violence reforms

The Family Law Pathways Network delivered two network events in October focused on recent law reform to strengthen Tasmania's legal responses to family and sexual violence.

An opening address from the Attorney-General and Minister for Justice, Elise Archer, reinforced her and the Government's commitment to ensuring they do everything they possibly can to make sure that all Tasmanian women, as well as the broader community, remains safe and protected.

"As Attorney-General and Minister for Justice, I am incredibly proud to have progressed the Criminal Code Amendment Act 2022 (the Act) which introduces a new stand-alone criminal offence of non-fatal strangulation, choking and suffocation, and which also amends the definition of consent to add stealthing," said Ms Archer.

The Act appropriately recognises that non-fatal strangulation, choking and suffocation is a significant form of violence by introducing a new stand-alone criminal offence, which in turn increases awareness and provides for a targeted response to the issue from the medical, policing, counselling and law reform sectors.

"I prioritised the development of this important reform because, as we know, it can tragically be a precursor for escalation in the severity of family violence," said Ms Archer.

The second key amendment to the Act relates to the definition of "consent" to expressly address conduct that is colloquially known as 'stealthing'.

Stealthing is a form of rape, as the victim has not given free agreement to sexual intercourse without a condom, such as circumstances where a person deliberately removes or damages a condom during sexual intercourse, without the knowledge and consent of the other party.

"As Attorney-General I am always mindful of the significant value that specific, targeted offences can have in terms of increasing community education and awareness of criminal behaviour," said Ms Archer.

While the criminal behaviour which these amendments address could have been prosecuted under existing laws, there is significant value in specific, targeted offences in terms of increasing community education and awareness which, in turn, leads to positive flow-on effects regarding reporting and prosecuting offences, and providing further support to victims and survivors.

"This legislation strengthens our laws and sends a strong and very clear message that this criminal behaviour will not be tolerated.

"To further this work, I have a clear focus on progressing an extensive law reform agenda, to further protect and support victims and survivors of crime," said Ms Archer.

Channel identity and resident Reinee Yates(Mason) born at Middleton 1914 celebrated her 108th Birthday this week. Joining Reinee for morning tea were her nieces and nephews Roslyn Bellew, Lyndley Chopping, Marija Rae, Graham Rae, Sue Chopping, Reinee, Chris Rae. (PS)

Kingborough Real Estate Guide

Welcome to Wrenwood

Aptly named "Wrenwood" for the native birds that visit the home, this phenomenal property, in a very private and tranquil setting, is reluctantly offered for sale.

The attention to detail in the home is evident from the moment you arrive at the front door with the stained-glass windows depicting a number of the native birds which call the property home.

Then step inside onto the sleek and convenient slate floors kept warm and comfortable all year round with a wood fire and multiple two-way inverters.

Oozing character with a beautiful bush outlook and conveniently located just a short drive from the Southern Outlet, the property is regularly visited by the local fauna including pademelons, echidnas, bandicoots, quolls and wombats with even an occasional Tassie Devil.

The location is truly idyllic, making it easy to see why the owners have called the property home for so long.

Backing onto the private bushland, the home exudes character, charm and charisma all while fitting comfortably into its natural bush surrounds.

The home is spread across an intelligent and generous three level floorplan and offers easy living where everyone can find their own space to relax as well as come together and socialise, offering the best of both worlds.

The bottom storey where the workshop is currently located consists of two large rooms which would also be suitable for games rooms or storage.

The second storey features a generous living room with a wraparound sturdy concrete deck, making it the perfect space to unwind with the family while taking in the panoramic bush views.

The adjoining dining room/conservatory is north-facing and overlooking the garden.

The entry and kitchen are located in a conveniently raised area along with the bathroom and fourth bedroom/study, however you would like to utilise the space.

Up the stairs to the third level is a second living area with mezzanine overlooking the conservatory/dining area.

The spacious master suite incorporates a very large walk-in robe/dressing room.

The living area and bathroom separate the master suite from the other two bedrooms on this level.

Polished Tasmanian Oak floors are a feature of this level.

Access to the property is on sealed roads and driveway, something many properties in the area do not have.

The home is conveniently located a short 15 minutes' drive to Kingston and all its amenities and a further 10 minutes to the Hobart CBD.

- Enclosed veggie garden
- Grey water system
- 2 water tanks, approx. 22,500 litres each plus 9000 litre back-up tank
- Septic system
- Serene views across surrounding rolling countryside
- Dam located at the top right of the property

Hearing a good deal

In part two of their hearing aid buying guide, Nick Modrovich, audiologist at Ability Hearing and Balance, walks you through getting the best deals on hearing aids.

One of the main issues consumers come unstuck with buying hearing aids is thinking that it is all about the product.

They forget that an experienced audiologist still needs to program the devices properly.

You may think that it is simply a case of tuning the hearing aids to your hearing levels and you can get that done anywhere or even order the hearing aids online.

But this is simply not the case.

"Online hearing aids have been around for the past 10 years," says Nick.

"The reason many people who previously bought a hearing aid online are choosing to come back into the clinic is that things haven't worked out as well as they thought it would."

Hearing happens in our brains.

The process of our brain translating speech sounds into a meaningful conversation is complex.

It is so much more than just tuning the hearing aids to your hearing levels.

This is where an audiologist who has been trained to understand the neuroscience behind hearing rehabilitation still plays an important role.

"It is completely understandable to want to search for the best pricing online," says Nick.

"This is why our in-clinic pricing is the same as what you will find online."

"We want our patients to get the best deal and be successful using their hearing aids."

"This way, our patients get the best of both worlds."

"They get the best advice, support, and care for their hearing rehabilitation, as well as the best pricing on the devices themselves."

Ability Hearing and Balance is the only Tasmanian-owned hearing clinic in the Kingborough region.

Call us for our obligation-free take-home hearing aid trials.

‘teas the season to be jolly...

Every year the Christmas period comes and goes, and for some it is a time of merriment and festivi-teas and for others it's a time of stress.

Whatever your feelings in the weeks leading up to Christmas we should take a few minutes to ourselves with a really good cuppa to relax and to also think of small ways we can care for others.

At the Art of Tea, we find that so many of our customers are very thoughtful and want to buy gifts that are small, locally made, and meaningful or useful.

A box of tea is an easy choice. It says how much a person cares for another when we give tea. It's a delightful tradition to share a pot of tea, but we can also enjoy a brew whilst chatting on the phone with our non-local friends and family.

We love how people carefully select a gift from our 150 varie-teas, or ask our advice if they aren't sure what tea may be best.

Our new Secret Santa's have already been very popular along with our themed gift boxes.

Gift Vouchers are also available.

Find us at 6/3 Mertonvale Circuit, 9am to 4pm Monday – Friday, and Saturday 10-1!

A shared pot of tea is one simple way we can slow down, connect with ourselves and those we care about in this otherwise hectic time of year. (PS)

Sneak peek for theatre lovers

Local theatre lovers who attended the recent launch of Hobart Repertory Theatre Society's '2023 at The Playhouse' got a special sneak preview of what on offer next year.

Local Margate resident, Anne Blythe Cooper will be directing Anne of Green Gables: The Musical.

People may know the story of the little, red-headed hero, Anne Shirley, who captures the hearts of her new rural community with her fun-loving and adventurous spirit.

It is a much-loved story based on the novel by Canadian author, Lucy Maud Montgomery written in 1908.

Hobart Repertory President, David Clements reflected on the thoughts of many people in the live entertainment industry, saying, "After the pressures of recent years, I can't tell you what a pleasure it has been, seeing audiences flock back to the theatre."

"We are delighted to announce that we will present FIVE SHOWS in 2023, and we are also confident that we have something for everyone in the 2023 line-up."

Next year at the Playhouse kicks off in the April school holidays with Anne of Green Gables: The Musical.

Then comes the dramatic story of The Winslow Boy in June, along with the comedy Let's Kill Agatha Christie, covering the July and August period.

Tennessee Williams' classic play The Glass Menagerie takes place in October, with the final show happening just before Christmas with a very funny take on the nativity tale Jingled.

Another Kingsborough resident, Jeff Kevin will present the Tennessee Williams' classic The Glass Menagerie in October.

It's a gripping play which more closely than any other works reflects the author's life with Williams closely resembling Tom, his mother forming the basis for Amanda, and his sickly older sister Rose, provides the inspiration for the fragile Laura.

2023 will see Hobart Rep having provided local audiences with 97 years of entertainment!

A berry merry Christmas

Berry season has arrived at the Farm Gate Hut at Whispering Spirit, Franklin, starting with gooseberries and strawberries, followed by raspberries, sylvianberries, tayberries, Morello cherries, yostaberries and red and blackcurrants, all grown without the use of chemicals.

Just after Christmas, blueberries and heirloom tomatoes will be available for purchase.

“Come along to our Farm Gate Hut and enjoy the atmosphere,” said Whispering Spirit’s Heidi Bauer.

“Pick some herbs for free and do some shopping at the produce stall, ring the cow bells loudly and we will help with anything else.”

Fresh breads, cakes and biscuits are available, and in the lead up to Christmas, there may be some Christmas stollen.

In the freezer, there is ice cream made from berries, frozen berry delights, as well as frozen fruits.

“Everything we make is homemade or home grown,” said Heidi.

“We look forward to seeing you at our Farm Produce Hut!”

For organic, home grown, homemade produce for Christmas, call in and see Heidi and her family at Whispering Spirit’s farm gate stall. (PS)

Unique jewellery for Christmas

It’s Christmas time and what better time than now to get that special piece of jewellery for your loved one.

“Come to Cygnet and let me create an individual masterpiece for you,” said Nina Lafeld, internationally trained jeweller and goldsmith for 21 years and owner of Lanique Design.

Nina offers personalised one-on-one appointments to create that unique piece.

Clients are welcome to bring their own collection of ideas and designs in to show Nina.

“A client brought me two quite small rings she had found in her mother’s jewellery box,” said Nina.

“There were no stones in the settings and the settings themselves were dull and dirty.

“A few minutes in the sonic cleaner revealed that both settings were gold, and the one that the client had thought was pinchbeck, in fact had white gold trim and some tiny diamonds.”

“After selecting stones that suited the settings, the client supplied some scrap gold and requested that the rings be remade to fit larger, modern hands.

“I could have melted down the rings and made something completely new.

“But in this instance, the client wanted to preserve the look of the old rings in memory of her mother.”

Nina has some limited-edition hand painted prints of wildlife available in store.

Support a local business and stop in or call Nina on 0447 149 200 to make a one-on-one appointment, so she can design and create that exclusive piece.

A Page from the Past - Kingborough News

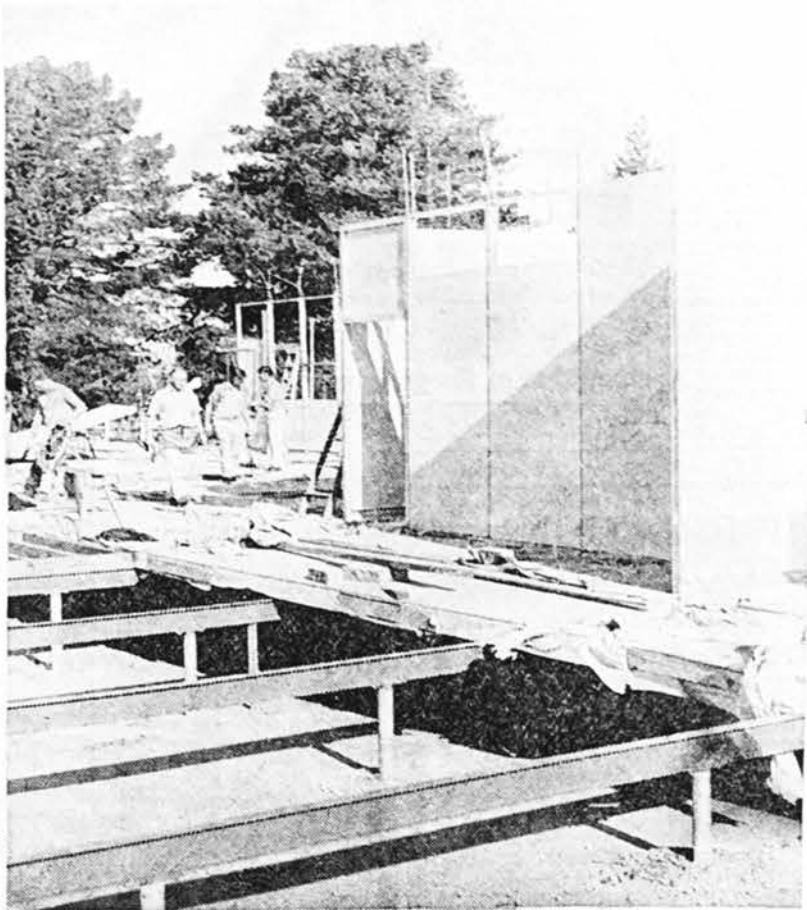

Fifty five years ago the Huon Newspaper Company published Kingborough News, a weekly newspaper that circulated from 1967. The below page is taken from Kingborough News, December 1, 1967.

SNUG SCHOOL EXTENSION

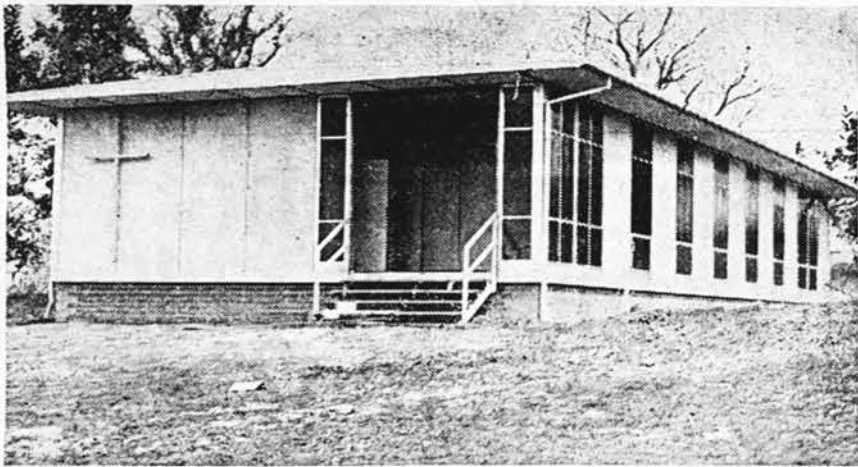

CEMAC Modular Construction Company men working on the building of an extension to the Snug Area School to accommodate pupils in woodwork and metal work. Since the fire, those who take these subjects have been going to Woodbridge Area School for instruction. It is expected that this building, which measures 52ft. 6in. by 32ft. 6in., will be completed shortly.

THE WALLS TAKE SHAPE

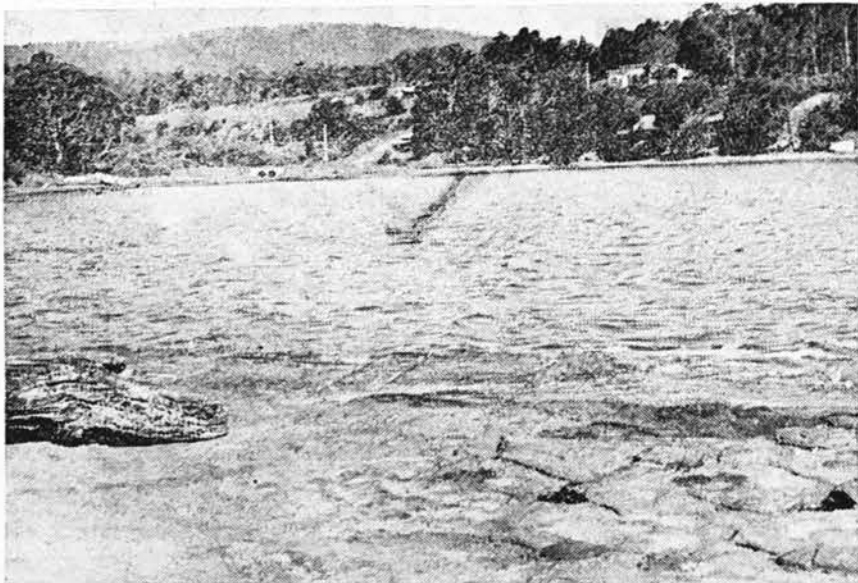

THE construction of the new Council Chambers and office block for the Kingborough Commission at Kingston have reached the stage when the walls are being erected, as shown in this picture. It is estimated that the building will be completed before the end of January. When the existing building is demolished, there will be space for off-street parking in front.

SNUG CHURCH FOR ALL

THE new Catholic Church at Snug, which will be opened on the evening of December 12, and will be used by other denominations as well as Catholics. It has been built by the Cematic Modular Construction Company, of Brisbane, which did the job in five weeks.

BAY WITH AN AROMA

THIS is the inlet at Howden known as "Stinking Bay", which it is proposed to enclose with a wall to keep the water out. It will then be filled in, and made into a recreation and picnic reserve. The smell, which comes from the mud, is most noticeable at low tide.
